LAWYERS ENGAGE IN FIRST TILT IN BEN NOBLE MURDER TRIAL

State's Attorney J. F. Cox, Seemingly Angered, Casts Insinuations at Defense's Witness.

OSBORNE IS HIGHLY INCENSED

Calls Cox to Stand to Testify he Also Asked Carrie Wiley to Come Here.

NOBLE'S RELATIVES ON STAND

Declare Defendant's Actions From Childhood Caused Them to Believe Him of Unsound Mind.

The large crowd of spectators in the court room at the Ben Noble trial was relieved of the monotony of routine evidence this afternoon when one of the State's attorneys, James F. Cox of Columbus, seeming to be incensed by not being able to gain his point in cross examining a witness, asked a question which casted a reflection on the character of the witness, and Miss Carrie Wiley, the alleged sweetheart of Noble, who was a witness this morning. The question angered the defendant's attorneys and hot words passed for a minute. It is the first tilt that the lawyers have enjoyed during the course of the trial. It finally ended in the defense calling the State's attorney, Cox to the stand and asking him to testify.

John M. Clippis of Bartholomew, a former employer of Noble, after being examined by the defense, whose witness he was, and whose testimony was rather beneficial to the defense, was taken in hand by Mr. Cox. Mr. Cox brought out that Clippis had taken considerable interest in the trial and had brought Miss Carrie Wiley, whom he testified formerly worked at his home, here yesterday, and kept her over night at the instigation of the defense, so that she could testify for them. He also insinuated that the relations between Clippis and Miss Wiley were not what they should be when he asked if they did not stay at the same hotel last night and also asked questions to bring out that Clippis' wife was not here yesterday or last night. When Mr Cox finished, seemingly much agitated, John E. Osborne, of the defense, also very angry, put the question to Clippis very suddenly if Mr. Cox did not also stay at the same hotel Miss Wiley did last night. He replied in the affirmative.

Mr. Osborne called the State's attorney, Mr. Cox, to the stand and asked him if he did not tell Clippis to have Miss Wiley here for the trial, sick or well. He admitted that he did, yet he declared that the defense did not subpoena her.

Mrs. John Clippis testified that she had known Noble ten years and that Carrie Wiley worked for her at one time. She said Noble's reputation was very good in that community. Mrs. Clippis declared that she had seen Noble driving through that neighborhood with Sprague's children on many occasions and told of a time when he took them to a birthday party. In cross examination the State only attempted to bring out that Mrs. Clippis was not here last night, seemingly with an attempt to discredit her husband's and Miss Wiley's character.

C. G. Noble of Kentucky, father of Ben Noble was placed on the stand late this afternoon and told a story which coincided with that of all of Noble's other relatives who have testified today. He related incidents to show that Noble's mind had never been right from childhood.

John M. Clippis of Bartholomew county testified that Noble had once worked for him. He said that Noble was employed by him eight or nine years ago and suddenly disappeared one afternoon while they were fanning wheat he not seeing Noble again for six months. He testified that Noble's reputation for peace and quietude was good. Mr. Clippis was placed on the stand immediately after the noon intermission. The State brought out nothing of importance in cross examination.

James Caskey, editor and publisher of the Greensburg News, who was a State's witness yesterday, was called back this afternoon by the defense for cross examination.

The testimony of yesterday was rehearsed. The defense questioned Caskey concerning the details of two conversations which he held with Noble in the Decatur county court house on the day of Noble's first trial. It was brought out yesterday that at that time Noble told Caskey no "third degree" methods were used to get his confession. Caskey wrote a story concerning the conversation and this afternoon the defense sought to introduce that article as evidence. A few merry tilts were enjoyed by the lawyers and a few quipps passed back and forth, which came after the argument previous to that when hot words were exchanged. The defense was successful in introducing a part of the article in evidence. Ben L. Smith read the article in evidence to the jury.

S. S. Doyns, a farmer of Marion county, testified that he had known Noble for five or six years and that the defendant worked for him at various times. Doyns declared that on two different occasions the defendant left very suddenly and did

INSPECTED I. & C. PROPERTY

President C. L. Henry Made Trip to Greensburg Yesterday.

C. L. Henry, president of the I. & C. Traction company, with his stenographer and a company of linemen and trackmen, arrived in this city Thursday afternoon on a special car, says the Greensburg News. They are making an inspection trip over the tracks between Indianapolis and this place and are taking careful note of improvements needed. The fact of Mr. Henry making a personal visit at this time certainly means some noteworthy improvements are being contemplated for this line.

SALOON OPENED IN ST. PAUL

After Being "Dry" For Over Two Years.

After a period of over two years St. Paul is again a wet oasis, George Hess having been granted a license by the Shelby county commissioners late yesterday afternoon, to sell intoxicating liquors. Hess is just over the line in Shelby county and during the time that the town has been "dry" he has been operating a soft drink establishment. What effect this will have on the voters of Adams township, in which the balance of the town is located, at the option election which has been set for March 28 is not known. It is thought, however, that as there is now a saloon there, it will vote "wet." Mace Bush is an applicant for a saloon license on the Decatur county side.

TO OPEN SALOON IN KNIGHTSTOWN

Alex McCarty Will Apply For License
at April Session of Henry County Commissioners.

NO OPTION ELECTION HELD

Wayne Township Remonstrance Has Expired and New One Will Not be Started.

County Auditor W. L. Risk has received notice that Alex McCarty of Knightstown will appear before the county commissioners at their April session to apply for a license to sell intoxicating liquors in the town of Knightstown, says the New Castle Courier.

Unless a remonstrance prevails or a local option election is held at Knightstown before that date, there seems no doubt but that the commissioners can but act favorably on McCarty's application, providing he has lived up to the other requirements of the law.

The Wayne township remonstrance which was effective before the local option election, has expired. However, there are more than 125 powers of attorney made to Asa Sample and Thomas Cox, signed by various voters and empowering the two men to sign their names against liquor remonstrances. The cards giving the power of attorney do not name any specific date as to the expiration of the legal right contained therein.

However, there is some question as to the present effectiveness of the cards. Asa Sample, one of the attorneys named, is dead, and the other, Thomas Cox, is now a resident of Rush county. The question of Cox's residence will probably not be considered in any legal difficulties over the situation as the number of cards are not sufficient to be effective.

DEFENDANT ASKED FOR JURY TRIAL

Suit For Possession Before Special
Judge Tom Davidson, Postponed
Until Next Term.

INVOLVES 70 ACRES OF LAND

The case of Edgar N. Hill et al against Henry T. Draper et al for the possession of real estate which was expected to come up in the circuit court this morning before Special Judge Tom Davidson of Greensburg, proved to be "fluke." The court convened in the commissioners' room about nine o'clock and the defense asked for a jury. The plaintiffs understood that the case was not to be a jury trial as did the court, who told Sheriff Bebout to excuse the regular jury last Monday for the rest of the term. The special judge could not wait until the jury was called and the upshot of the affair was that the case was continued until next term of court. The suit involves about seventy acres of land in Ripley township. Sparks & Gary represented the plaintiffs, while Megee & Kiplinger, and Smith, Cambern & Smith were attorneys for the defendants.

An official report estimates the number of Para rubber trees under cultivation in Cochin, China, at over one million, of which about fifteen thousand are being tapped.

TWO MEASURES OF IMPORTANCE

Governor Marshall Has Signed Two More Bills For Senator E. E.
Moore of This District.

NUMBERS ARE 205 AND 236

One Change Practice in Mandamus
Proceedings--Other Affects Street
Opening Case in Connersville.

Governor Marshall has signed two more bills for Senator E. E. Moore, says the Connersville News. One was senate bill No. 205, the other senate bill No. 236.

The first of these, it is learned, was designed especially to bear on the case of the Grand avenue opening. It changes practice in mandamus proceedings. Under the old law in this matter a plaintiff, asking for improvements or the like, under writ of mandamus, could recover nothing if, peradventure, the court decided that he had demanded too much. Under the change, the mandamus proceeding is made to be like any other civil action, and if the plaintiff asks too much, but yet has, in the mind of the court, some just demand, the amount of the same may be given him. This change has a direct effect on the Grand avenue opening case—one which will be better seen by lawyers than by laymen, but which works strongly toward a satisfactory adjustment of this city's difference with the railroad company.

The other bill, No. 236, amends Sections 55 and 249, and provides that cities or towns may, without calling elections, extend or improve public works already existing. If a this law been in force when the question of new water works was up in this city the change might have been brought about without election.

Both these measures are regarded as very important indeed. Their passage adds to the excellent record of Senator Moore, and will be appreciated, it is believed, by the people of Connersville as a whole.

ROSE CITY POET CRITICALLY ILL

Benjamin S Parker's Condition Such
That Friends and Relatives Express Little Hope.

UNCONSCIOUS PART OF TIME

The condition of Benjamin S. Parker is very critical today and his relatives and many friends feel discouraged and fear that the end is near, says the New Castle Times. While Mr. Parker's condition the past two weeks has seen but little change he was believed to be slowly mending, but this period now seems to be at an end and he is in a serious condition.

During Wednesday night Mr. Parker was unconscious part of the time and did not recognize members of his family or friends who called to inquire about him. The rugged constitution has withstood much but his present illness has been of such long duration that it is feared he can not stand much more and there is a feeling that this is the last illness of the city's highly respected citizen.

THE WEATHER.

Fair tonight and probably Saturday. Warmer.

MISSIONARY WILL LECTURE.

Miss Grace Jennings Will Deliver an Address Sunday Afternoon.

Miss Grace Jennings, a missionary of Nankin, China, will lecture at the St. Paul M. E. church at 2:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Miss Jennings has made a thorough study of the people, history and government of China. Her lectures are very interesting and instructive. This will be a union meeting of all the churches of the city. Everyone is invited to attend, especially the ladies' societies of the various churches.

A THREE COURSE BANQUET

Martha Poe Chapter No. 143 Order of Eastern Star entertained yesterday afternoon and night with a reception and banquet in honor of the Grand Matron of Indiana, Mrs. Blanche Regett, and Most Worthy Grand Patron of the United States, the Rev. William D. Engle. About forty visitors were present from Connersville and twenty from Morristown, besides other guests from surrounding cities. At six-thirty o'clock a three course banquet was served to 145 people. During the banquet, Wagoner's orchestra played. Following the banquet a short social session was held and then degree work was started.

CARTHAGE WILL PLAY THE LOCALS

The Game For Championship of Rush
County to Take Place
Tonight.

HAVE BEATEN MORRISTOWN

The local high school basket ball team has arranged for a game here tonight with the Carthage high school team. Carthage has been claiming the championship of the county and the game tonight comes as a result of their challenge. Local followers of the sport did not know that they had a team, but it seems as though they beat Morristown in two games early in the season. For this reason the contest should be a fast one. Rushville has asked Morristown for a game on several occasions and has been refused. Just why they should not play the locals is not understood unless they are really afraid of being beaten.

PLANS COURT WORK.

Indianapolis Star: Judge Pliny W. Bartholomew is getting ready for his first term as superior judge in Shelby county and yesterday sent a letter to the Shelby court clerk, saying that he wished to try court cases the first two weeks and jury cases the last three in each term. He will go to Shelbyville April 24. No arrangements have been made to assign cases in the Marion Superior court.

CITY COUNCIL PASSES NEW LAW

Ordinance Regulating Saloons is Now in Force--Is Very Strict Measure.

CHANGE SEVERAL CLAUSES

No Blinds or Screens Can be at Windows--One Rear Door
Only.

The city council met last night in a special meeting and passed an ordinance to regulate the saloons in this city. The section referring to the saloons locating in the business district was stricken out and a few minor changes made.

One peculiar feature of the new law is that the saloons are prohibited from having blinds and screens in the front end. There must be a clear view of the place from the outside. The room in which the saloon is to locate must have only one rear door. This will mean that at least one place will have to wall up or bar its side entrances. The penalties fixed for the violation of this ordinance are very severe, the limit being a fine of $300 and 5 months in jail. The ordinance in full is as follows:

An ordinance to license and regulate the traffic in intoxicating liquors and directing the arrangement and construction of the rooms and furniture where such traffic is carried on.

Section 1. Be it ordained by the common council of the City of Rushville, Indiana, that it shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to sell, barter or give away, any spirituous, vinous, malt or other intoxicating liquor, within the corporate limits of said city, or within two miles thereof, in a less quantity than a quart at a time, with the privileges of allowing such liquors to be used upon the premises where sold, or to keep any room, building or house for any such purpose, except the same be done in pursuance of a license duly issued under the provisions of this ordinance.

Section 2. Whenever any person, firm or corporation shall duly and regularly procure from the Board of Commissioners of the County of Rush a license to sell, barter or give away spirituous, vinous, malt or other intoxicating liquor, in a less quantity than a quart at a time, with the privilege of allowing such liquors to be used upon the premises where sold, and shall present such license to the city clerk of said city of Rushville, together with a receipt from the treasurer of said city, showing the previous payment, by the applicant, to said treasurer, of the sum of Five Hundred Dollars, ($500.00) as a license fee, as hereinafter specified, then it shall be the duty of such City Clerk to issue a license to such applicant as herein specified. All licenses issued under the provisions of this ordinance shall be for the term of one year, shall be issued to the same parties named by the board of county commissioners in the issue of such license or the transfer thereof, and shall be coexistent with the period covered by the license issued by said board of commissioners. The regular annual license fee to be charged to applicants under the provisions of this ordinance shall be Five Hundred Dollars, ($500.00) which sum shall be paid to the city treasurer before the city clerk shall deliver any such license. Said city clerk shall keep in his office a duplicate copy of any license issued under the provisions of this ordinance.

Section 3. Any room where any spirituous, vinous, malt or other intoxicating liquors are sold, bartered

Rheumatism Comes From Bad Kidneys

Once Your Kidneys Work Properly, Rheumatism, Kidney Disease and Bladder Trouble Disappear. How To Cure Yourself.

It is no longer necessary to spend months and months undergoing a complicated treatment for rheumatism, kidney or bladder trouble, or spend a good many dollars in doctors' bills. A new treatment can now be obtained which seems to act more like a marvel than a medicine. This treatment has produced such satisfactory results in a short time that it is now guaranteed from first to last.

There should be no more doubt about the rapid cure of rheumatism, no fears of the fatal termination of treacherous kidney disease or dropsy.

Rheumatism means nothing more nor less than that your kidneys do not work properly. Your blood passes through the kidneys hundreds of times a day to be filtered and purified. When the kidneys are weak, the poisons are not taken out of the blood as they should be. This leads to various diseases, such as rheumatism, terrible Bright's disease, diabetes, dropsy and bladder trouble.

The new guaranteed treatment is Dr. Derby's Kidney Pills. One day's use of them will prove their remarkable effect. M. T. Ridenour of Lima, Ohio, says: "When I feel bad in my back, I just take a couple of Derby's Kidney Pills and get immediate relief."

If you have rheumatism anywhere, back pains, cloudy, foul urine, pains in the bladder, Bright's disease or diabetes, put your whole confidence in Dr. Derby's Kidney Pills, and you will not be disappointed.

Dr. Derby's Kidney Pills are sold at all drug stores—60 pills—10 days' treatment—25 cents; or we will send them direct from the laboratory of Derby Medicine Co., Eaton Rapids, Mich., prepaid if you wish. If you want to try them first, just tell your druggist to give you a free sample package.

VILLAGE WIPED OFF THE MAP

Powder Plant Lets Go At Pleasant Prairie, Wis.

SHOCK FELT FOR MANY MILES

Across the Lake in Michigan and as far South as Indianapolis the Shock Following Explosion of the Laffin-Rand Powder Company's Plant Near Kenosha Was Felt—Death List Numbers Forty.

Chicago, March 10.—With terrific force the big plant of the Laffin-Rand Powder company, located near the little town of Pleasant Prairie, just across the line in Wisconsin near Kenosha and sixty miles from Chicago, "let go" last night shortly after 8 o'clock. The shock was felt for many miles around. In Chicago many large buildings in the loop district were shaken. The Boston store, one of the largest buildings in the loop, was so severely shaken that large plate glass windows in the first and second story were broken and fell on folks in the street below.

The village of Pleasant Prairie is entirely wiped out and not a building remains of a once prosperous town of 150 inhabitants, while the site of the works of the Laffin-Rand Powder company is marked only by a great hole in the ground.

Estimates of the dead place the loss of life at forty. That is the number of men actually employed in and about the works at the time of the giant blast.

The shock of the explosion was felt in towns across the lake in Michigan and as far away as Rockford, Ill., more than 100 miles from Chicago. From Indiana towns as far south as Indianapolis queries were received following the shock, asking for details of the explosion.

VIADUCT WRECKED

Dynamiters at Work on Belt Line of Illinois Traction System.

Springfield, Ill., March 10.—The immense viaduct of the Belt line of the Illinois traction system near here was wrecked by dynamite. A second explosion an hour later wrecked the top of the works of the Capitol mine, only recently installed at a cost of $40,000. The linemen of the McKinlock company employed on the electric line walked out when an increase in wages was refused them and the strike is held responsible for the wrecking of the bridge.

THE MARTIAL SPIRIT TAKES SUDDEN SPURT

Many Indiana Young Men Want to Enlist for the "War."

Indianapolis, March 10.—That there is a feeling of war in the air and a desire to participate in any trouble that is indicated by the sending of the United States troops to Texas, is evidenced by the number of inquiries received at the United States army recruiting station in this city.

Many young men have called in person or over the telephone at the recruiting station inquiring as to the possibility of being sent to Texas if they enlist. It is not so much that they wish merely to enlist in the army, but they want assurance that they will be sent to the "front."

Nothing has been heard at the statehouse about an invitation from the government to national guard officers to go to Texas with the regular army. A number of officers have called at the office of Adjutant General McCoy, and also at the office of Brigadier General W. J. McKee, to make inquiries as to what the military display means, but they have not received any information because there was none at hand.

WILL TALK IT OVER

Building and Loan Associations to Discuss New Law.

Indianapolis, March 10.—Gilbert H. Hendren, building and loan clerk in the office of the auditor of state, will call in a number of the building and loan men of the state for a conference in regard to the administration of the new law, which provides for examinations of the associations at least once a year, and at any other time when it is deemed advisable.

The law gives the auditor of state power to appoint three building and loan examiners for this purpose, but Auditor O'Brien has not yet made any announcement of appointments. Mr. Hendren explains that it is the purpose of the law to put the building and loan business in Indiana on a par with the banking business, as far as state supervision is concerned. There are 327 such associations in the state, with 120,000 members and assets aggregating $36,000,000.

Must Have New Attorney.

Springfield, Ill., March 10.—With the appointment of Walter L. Fisher as secretary of the interior it has become necessary for the senate bribery committee to secure another attorney to conduct its investigation. The appointment, it is understood, has been offered to George Gillespie of Springfield.

Child's Horrible Death.

Joliet, Ill., March 10.—The body of Herman Labo, four-year-old son of Joseph Labo, the wealthy Joliet florist, was found in a cesspool near a greenhouse at the Labo home Wednesday by a party of searchers. It is supposed the boy accidentally fell into the pool.

They Knew the Combination.

Indianapolis, March 10.—Thieves broke into the Kinzly hair store and stole a fine line of switches and other hair goods which will total in value at least $3,000. The safe was opened, the thieves evidently having the combination, and $219 was removed from the safe.

Says He Needs a Rest.

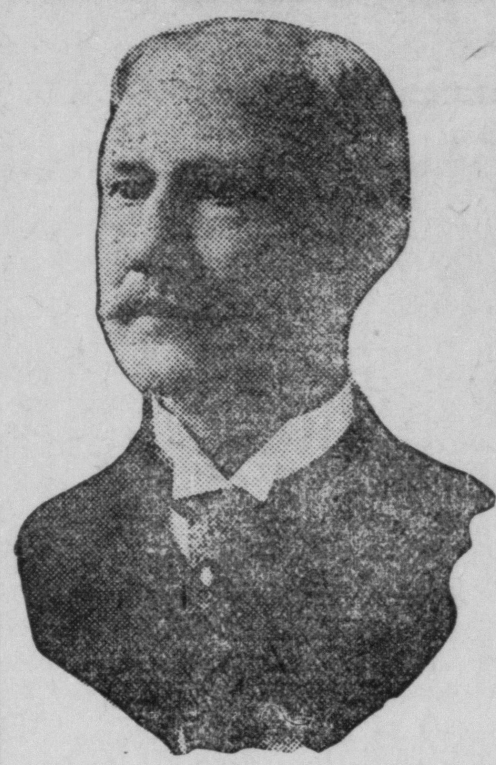

Indianapolis, March 10.—Governor and Mrs. Marshall have gone to Hot Springs, N. C., where they will stay for a week or two. The governor said he was tired out after the strenuous work of the session of the legislature, and that he wished to rest.

Lesson XI.—First Quarter, For March 12, 1911.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, II Kings iv, 25-37. Memory Verses, 32-35—Golden Text, Rom. vi, 23—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

The power of the Lord God of Elijah was first seen through Elisha in the dividing of the Jordan, the Lord doing for one man what He had just done for two, and long before for a whole nation under Joshua. It is nothing with the Lord to help with many or few. The power of the Lord is next seen in the healing of the waters of Jericho, then in the chastening of the young men who mocked Elisha, telling him to go up as Elisha had done; after that in the ditches filled with water, for the sake of Jehoshaphat, without either wind or rain.

In the beginning of our lesson chapter we see the same power multiplying the widow's oil until every empty vessel was filled, all her need supplied and something over.

Now we have in today's lesson the filling of a childless home with gladness by the gift of a no doubt longed for child and the restoration of a deeper joy by giving him back from the dead.

A great woman of Shunem felt constrained as she saw Elisha pass her house from time to time to ask him in to eat bread, and it became his habit to do this. Later she suggested to her husband that they provide him a room with a bed, a table, a stool and a candlestick, and he seems gratefully to have accepted their kindness. Then the question arose in his mind. How can I in any way recompense this loving kindness? On inquiry he found that she needed no favor from any one, but at the reminder from Gehazi that they had no children he asked the Lord for this favor for her, and receiving the assurance that it would be so, he communicated to her the fact, which she at first received very unbelievably (verse 16), but as Elisha had assured her so it came to pass.

We think of Sarah and her unbelieving laughter, and yet in her case it came to pass, for "Is anything too hard for the Lord?" (Gen. xviii, 9-14). We look onward to Elizabeth and Zacharias and note the unbelief of the latter (Luke i, 13-20), and yet in their case it came to pass also. So we are taught to "Be not afraid, only believe" (Mark v, 36), and rely on Jer. xxxiii, 3.

It may have been that the child became too much of an idol—we do not know—but one day in the field with the reapers he complained of his head, was carried home and died on his mother's knees at noon. She laid the little body on Elisha's bed, shut the door, and without telling her husband why she made all possible speed to the man of God, who was then at Mount Carmel. Seeing her afar off, he sent his servant Gehazi to inquire of her if it was well with her and her husband and the child. Her reply was, "It is well," but she hurried on till she came to Elisha, and she held him by his feet, and with the very words which Elisha himself used to Elijah she clung to him until he arose and went with her (verse 30, with chapter ii, 2, 4, 6).

Gehazi preceded them and laid the staff of Elisha upon the child, but there was no effect upon the child, no response, neither voice nor hearing. When Elisha came he went in and shut the door and prayed unto the Lord and then stretched himself upon the child, mouth to mouth, eyes to eyes, hands to hands, and the flesh of the child waxed warm. After walking to and fro in the house he again stretched himself upon the child, and the child sneezed seven times and opened his eyes. The mother was called, and with gratitude that cannot be described she took up her son and went out.

The next verses describe a deliverance from death that might have taken away many, and the chapter closes with a miraculous multiplication of bread—life given, life restored, life saved, life sustained, completing nine instances thus far of the power of God seen through Elisha. Elisha was to this woman a man of God, a holy man of God (verses 9, 16, 21, 22, 25, 27); not so Gehazi. She saw something of God in Elisha. He was to her in God's stead. We are here in Christ's stead, and people should see something of Him in us (II Cor. iv, 11; v, 20). Let the woman's pressing on to Elisha remind us that we must come to God Himself through Jesus Christ alone and not through any mortal man.

Ordinances may be as useless as Elisha's staff. It is life that is needed, though there may be life associated with ordinances in the hands of some, but not through such as Gehazi.

Compare the story of Elijah bringing a boy to life in I Kings, xvii, 19-22, and note the parallels of the prophet alone with the child, the child in the prophet's bed, the prayer, stretching himself upon the child. May we earnestly covet such lives of nearness to God as these men lived and be used of Him to bring life to many dead souls. There must be the "alone with God," the believing prayer, the persistent waiting upon God, the close personal touch of life itself, not of a rod or staff, even though it be that of a prophet.

Spurgeon used to say that this stretching of oneself to a child was the hardest kind—a stretching downward to make yourself as far as possible one with the child; seeing, speaking and handling things as the child would; a putting yourself in his place.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning March 12, 1911.

Topic.—First aid for the tempted.—Heb. ii, 14-18. Edited by Rev. Sherman H. Doyle, D. D.

One of our great artists has painted a picture of a knight on the verge of a dark wood through which he has to pass. The wood contains all manner of lurking perils and stealthy enemies, and before entering it the young knight has taken off his helmet and is pouring out his soul in prayer. And the legend at the bottom of the picture is "Into Thy Hands, O Lord!"

That picture teaches a great truth—a truth which every young Christian especially needs to know. It declares that if one hopes to make his way safely, victoriously, through life, each day and many times each day he must commit himself into the keeping of the almighty and gracious Lord. The odds against us are too great for us to hope to win the battle with temptation if we trust solely in our own strength. We are too weak and frail. We are too prone to do evil. We are too ignorant of Satan's devices. What chance have such as we to overcome the forces which array themselves against us? What match are such as we for the principalities and powers of evil?

"Alas, my master, how shall we do?" cries the servant of Elisha as he rushes into the prophet's chamber. His face pale with terror. The host of the enemy encompass the city like a wall, and the terrified man has seen the morning sun glitter on swords and spears and the awful array of war. Calm and self possessed, his master answers, "Fear not, for they that be with us are more than they that be with them." "With us?" the servant might ask. "Who are with us? Where are they?" The prophet prays, and in answer to his prayer the Lord opens the servant's eyes. And as if every bush and every tree had suddenly changed into a celestial form, "Behold, the mountain was full of horses and chariots round about Elisha!" In our every time of temptation, when Satan and his hosts, issuing from the pit and drawn up in battle array against us, seem to have cut off every way of escape, and we are ready to cry, "Alas, alas, how shall I do?" we, too, need to have our eyes opened. We need to see Jesus. He is our defense. He is our shield. He is our refuge. He is our ever present helper.

Jesus can deliver us out of temptation, for He has shared this life of ours, with all its struggle, against temptation and sin. He has been tempted in all points, like as we are. He has met Satan and all his legions, and He has overcome them. He overcame them decisively in the wilderness. He mastered them in the garden of Gethsemane. He utterly defeated them by His death and resurrection. All through His life as He trod our earth He was tempted, and from every temptation He came forth the victor. Because our Lord is a victorious Lord, who knows Satan through and through and who knows us through and through, He is able to succor them that are tempted.

This succor is our great, our deadly need. Like Peter upon the water, when temptations assail our only hope is to cry out at once, "Save, Lord, or I perish." And He will save. Every moment of every day He is doing it. All around us young people are winning splendid moral victories. Trusting in His strength, they are overcoming dark and terrible temptations. And we also may be more than conquerors through Him that loved us, for Jesus is our Saviour not only because He saves us from our past sin, but also because He is a very present help in every time of trouble. And He will show His saving power to every heart that cries to Him in the hour of its temptation. In your hour of temptation He will save you.

A Sunshine Task.

Youth forgets age until the spirit of the Sunshine committee gets into the hearts of the young people and awakens sympathy.

The experience of a young Australian girl might well be taken to heart. The Christian Endeavor News tells the story:

"You're not as good a gal as you might be," said the old age pensioner to one of the Sunshiners who went to see him.

"Why?" she inquired.

"Waal, you go to church and endeavor a lot, I know, but you don't come often to see us old folk."

"Why do you not come to church?" she replied.

"Oh, I don't know. You ought to come and hold your Endeavor here."

"All right," said the visitor. "We'll come."

And they went.

The roads were bad, but a company got together and held bright Christian Endeavor meetings with the old man and in several other homes. The most sunshiny Endeavorers were always selected for leaders; the cloudy ones were reserved for the church meetings.

We do too little of this kind of Sunshine work.

BEN NOBLE TRIAL

not declare his intentions. He stated that Noble's reputation in that community was very good.

J. F. Isengale of Indianapolis, Noble's uncle, testified that the defendant was always a very peculiar boy and that he had "spells" when he fancied he saw strange objects and human beings. The uncle's testimony was about the same as that of all the other relatives. He testified that he visited Noble in the Marion county jail when the alleged murderer protested his innocence. He said that Noble's reputation was good.

The details of the country romance, which was given an airing yesterday afternoon, when the attorneys for the defense cross examined Fred Whipple, alleged rival of Ben Noble, were re-affirmed and strengthened this morning just before dinner when Miss Carrie Wiley, the girl who was courted by both Noble and Whipple, was put on the stand by the defense. Miss Wiley practically confirmed every statement that was brought out by the defense in cross examination.

There was a general rustle and stretching of necks when Noble's attorneys announced that Miss Wiley was the next witness. The crowd in the court room, which was not very large this morning, but which tested the capacity of the spacious room yesterday afternoon, was restless and practically everyone arose from their seats when Miss Wiley entered. They were greeted by a young miss of twenty years, demure and shy, yet with a look of determination on her face. Miss Wiley is dark, has sparkling brown eyes, is very attractive looking, plump and rather small of stature. She wore a dress of old rose color, a hat to match and was dressed very neatly. Withal it is generally conceded that she had considerable weight with the jury.

Miss Wiley testified that she had known Ben Noble ten or eleven years and kept company with him during the year just passed. She stated that Noble had told her he was an Odd Fellow, had confided in her enough to tell her many of the secrets of the order and manner in which he was initiated.

The witness said she knew Fred Whipple and had been in his company occasionally. She testified that she had an engagement with Ben Noble one Saturday evening and Sunday five or six weeks before the murder and that he never came, but that Fred Whipple did. She stated in answer to a question that she had never told Whipple to deliver any message of any sort to Ben Noble. On the day following, she said that she saw Noble and that he tried to explain, but that she would not allow him and she treated him in a cool manner. Later she declared that Ben Noble told her that Whipple had said he brought a message to him from Miss Wiley, telling him not to come on that day.

Miss Wiley described another occasion, when Fred Whipple came to her home and found Ben Noble already there. She said Whipple turned around immediately and that she and Noble, in a rig, drove behind him all the way to Birney.

The young woman testified that she was with Noble on the Sunday afternoon before the murder on the night of the same day. She said he referred to his employer, Albert Sprague, several times during that afternoon, always in a very complimentary way. At one time, according to the testimony, he told her that Sprague had given him $2 to hire the rig which they used. Miss Wiley asserted that at another time that afternoon, when they were at Miss Wiley's sister's home in Birney Noble referred to his employer as being a fine man and one of the best men in the country. At another time, according to the witness, on that same afternoon, Noble told Miss Wiley that Sprague gave him $2 to hire the rig because he had promised him one and that Sprague was a fine man and would keep his contract always. Miss Wiley declared that Noble was very natural on the afternoon of that drive and that he was jovial and in good humor as he always was while in her company. She re-affirmed that he did not seem depressed and that never in her presence at any time had he said anything against Albert Sprague.

In the cross examination of the witness, the State brought out nothing aside from what had already been related, with the exception of the fact that Ben Noble had always kept his engagements with her with the exception of the one time when he was side-tracked by Whipple.

The greater part of the morning was given over to Noble's relatives, who were placed on the stand by the defense. They all testified to the strange actions of Noble while a boy, of his strange characteristics, how he had "spells" and how he often during his life had run away and was gone for days at a time without the family knowing of his whereabouts. All of them testified that they believed him of unsound mind and also that his reputation had always been the best.

Charles Noble of Edinburg, brother of Ben Noble, the first witness on the stand this morning recited the prominent incidents of Ben Noble's life from the time he was born until he was of age after which time he left him. He testified that Noble never went to school, being born in Boone county, Kentucky, but that he and his half-brother taught Ben how to read and write at the age of sixteen.

He related incidents when Noble had the "spells" which were verified by Noble's other relatives. Noble in his boyhood talked in his sleep and had to be quieted by his relatives, according to the brother, who also testified that Noble looked wild and haggard after such an attack. Charles Noble was on the witness stand nearly an hour, during which time he referred to many instances during Ben Noble's life when he had visions at night and when he saw things while driving along the road that were not really there. He also related that his brother was rather irresponsible when a boy, that he often ran away without any announcement as to his plans and would be gone for some time. He told of one incident when Ben Noble ran away from his home in Kentucky, walked to the Ohio river, crossing it and coming up into Indiana.

Charles Noble testified that he was in the Marion county jail five times to see his brother. The first time he said his brother and he had a conversation about a lodge pin and that it was not until the second time that the subject of the murder was broached. Then, according to the witness, Ben Noble said he was not guilty, and when asked why he pleaded guilty, he said that Patterson, the sheriff of Decatur county had told him that he should throw himself on the mercy of the court and that he would not get a sentence of more than eight years or less than one year. He told his brother, according to the testimony that the sheriff told him that they had enough evidence in Decatur county to send him to hell and that he had better plead guilty and stand a chance of a light sentence.

The State was unable to assail Charles Noble's testimony at any point and he is conceded to be one of the best witnesses on the stand up to this time.

Frank Hager of Indianapolis, a half-brother of Ben Noble, practically bore out the testimony of Charles Noble. He described incidents in Ben Noble's life when he had visions, strange spells and was always weak, haggard and nervous after them. Hager told the jury that he was awakened by the report of a gun one night and that he went out to find Ben Noble wandering around in the yard. He said Ben told him he had seen a man at the window twice and that he went out to shoot him. According to the witness, Ben said it seemed nothing more than a shadow that he shot at it twice and that it finally disappeared in the woods.

The State attempted to impeach Hager's testimony by proving that he was of a very roving disposition and had lived in many places. Ralph Sprague of Columbus asked Hager if he were not the same Frank Hager tried in Bartholomew county for assault and battery with criminal intent on a nine-year-old girl. He denied it. In rebuttal the defense attempted to show that Ralph Sprague was prosecutor of the Bartholomew court at that time and that if Frank Hager was tried there for such a crime, he (Ralph Sprague) would surely know the fact. The defense was highly incensed at the attack on the witness.

Hager also testified in direct examination that Ben Noble told him in the Marion county jail that he made the signed confession on the promise of leniency from Sheriff Patterson.

James Noble of Boone county, Kentucky, an own brother of Ben Noble, testified to the same peculiarities in the boyhood days of Ben Noble. His testimony was in effect about the same as that of the other relatives.

Albert Miles of Indianapolis, a cousin of Ben Noble, who has lived with the defendant at various times, told about other incidents in the defendant's life, which tended to bring out the theory the defense is attempting to prove.

Dr. Gulliford, Decatur county coroner, was placed back on the stand by the State shortly before dinner and the No. 12 gauge gun which is alleged to have been used by Noble in murdering Sprague, was introduced as evidence and passed to the jury. The shot which were taken from Sprague's head were also exhibited to the jury. The coroner testified that the gun was dirty when he found it, but that he had cleaned it.

The Palace offers a Lubin film tonight, "Age vs. Youth." It is the story of a young man who succeeds his father in business and begins by discharging all the old employees. Listen! Let us measure you for that new suit Different People have different dispositions. That's what makes the difference in people. Some People never put off anything they intend doing at all. We have measured several of these people already and they now have their Spring Suits. They're fixed. Others feel there is plenty of time until Easter, and they will order suits within the next fortnight. They're alright too. But there is yet another class of people who put off doing things day by day, until finally, when the time comes that some special occasion demands a nice suit, they have no time to get one made, so they have to get a hand-me-down.

(Copyright by Ainslee Magazine Co.)

ROBBINS, reporter for the Picayune, and Dumars, of L'Abelle—the old French newspaper that has buzzed for nearly a century—were good friends, well proven by years of ups and downs together. They were seated where they had a habit of meeting—in the little, Creole-haunted cafe of Madame Tibault, in Dumaine street. If you know the place, you will experience a thrill of pleasure in recalling it to mind. It is small and dark, with six little polished tables, at which you may sit and drink the best coffee in New Orleans, and concoctions of absinthe equal to Sazerac's best. Madame Tibault, fat and indulgent, presides at the desk, and takes your money. Nicolette and Meme, Madame's nieces, in charming bib aprons, bring the desirable beverages.

Dumars, with true Creole luxury, was sipping his absinthe, with half-closed eyes, in a swirl of cigarette smoke. Robbins was looking over the morning Pic, detecting, as young reporters will, the gross blunders in the make-up, and the envious blue-pencilling his own stuff had received. This item, in the advertising columns, caught his eye, and with an exclamation of sudden interest he read it aloud to his friend:

"PUBLIC AUCTION—At 3 o'clock this afternoon there will be sold to the highest bidder all the common property of the Little Sisters of Samaria, at the home of the Sisterhood, in Bonhomme street. The sale will dispose of the building, ground and the complete furnishings of the house and chapel, without reserve."

This notice stirred the two friends to a reminiscence talk concerning an episode in their journalistic career that had occurred about two years before. They recalled the incidents, went over the old theories, and discussed it anew, from the different perspective time had brought.

There were no other customers in the cafe. Madame's fine ear had caught the line of their talk, and she came over to their table—for had it not been her lost money—her vanished twenty thousand dollars—that had set the whole matter going?

The three took up the long-abandoned mystery, threshing over the old, dry chaff of it. It was in the chapel of this house of the Little Sisters of Samaria that Robbins and Dumars had stood during that eager, fruitless news search of theirs, and looked upon the gilded statue of the Virgin.

"Thass so, boys," said Madame, summing up. "Thass ver' wicked man, M'sieur Morin. Everybody shall be cert' he steal those money I place in his hand for keep safe. Yes. He's bou'n' spend that money, somehow." Madame turned a broad and comprehensive smile upon Dumars. "I ond'-stand you, M'sieur Dumars, those day you come ask me fo' tell ev'rything I know 'bout M'sieur Morin. Ah! yes,

I know most time when those men lose money you say, 'Cherchez la femme'—there is somewhere the woman. But not for M'sieur Morin. No, boys. Before he shall die, he is like one saint. You might's well, M'sieur Dumars, go try find those money in those statue of Virgin Mary that M'sieur Morin present at those p'tite seours, as try find one femme."

At Madame Tibault's last words, Robbins sidelong slightly and cast a keen, sidelong glance at Dumars. The Creole sat, unmoved, dreamily watching the spirals of his cigarette smoke.

It was then 9 o'clock in the morning, and, a few minutes later, the two friends separated, going different ways to their day's duties. And now follows the brief story of Madame Tibault's vanished thousands.

New Orleans will readily recall to mind the circumstances attendant upon the death of Mr. Gaspard Morin, in that city. Mr. Morin was an artistic goldsmith and jeweler, in the old French quarter, and a man held in the highest esteem. He belonged to one of the oldest French families, and was of some distinction as an antiquary and historian. He was a bachelor, about fifty years of age. He lived in quiet comfort, at one of those rare old hostleries in Royal street. He was found in his rooms one morning, dead from unknown causes.

When his affairs came to be looked into, it was found that he was practically insolvent, his stock of goods and personal property barely—but nearly enough to free him from censure—covering his liabilities. Following, came the disclosure that he had been entrusted with the sum of twenty thousand dollars by a former servant in the Morin family, one Madame Tibault, which she had received as a legacy from relatives in France.

The most searching scrutiny by friends and the legal authorities failed to reveal the disposition of the money. It had vanished, and left no trace. Some weeks before his death, Mr. Morin had drawn the entire amount, in gold coin, from the bank where it had been placed while he looked about (he told Madame Tibault) for a safe investment. Therefore, Mr. Morin's memory seemed doomed to bear the cloud of dishonesty, while Madame was, of course, disconsolate.

Then it was that Robbins and Dumars, representing their respective journals, began one of those pertinacious private investigations which, of late years, the press has adopted as a means to glory and the satisfaction of public curiosity.

"Cherchez la femme," said Dumars. "That's the ticket!" agreed Robbins. "All roads lead to the eternal feminine. We will find the woman."

They exhausted the knowledge of the staff of Mr. Morin's hotel, from the bell-boy down to the proprietor. They gently, but inflexibly, pumped the family of the deceased as far as his cousins twice removed. They artfully sounded the employees of the late jeweler, and dogged his customers for information concerning his habits. Like bloodhounds, they traced every step of the supposed defaulter, as nearly as might be, for years along the limited and monotonous paths he had trodden.

At the end of their labors, Mr. Morin stood, an immaculate man. Not one weakness that might be served up as a criminal tendency, not one deviation from the path of rectitude, not even a hint of a predilection for the opposite sex, was found to be placed to his debit. His life had been as regular and austere as a monk's; his habits, simple and unexcelled. Generous, charitable, and a model in propriety, was the verdict of all who knew him.

"What now?" asked Robbins, fingering his empty notebook. "Cherchez la femme," said Dumars, lighting a cigarette. "Try Lady Bellairs."

This piece of femininity was the racetrack favorite of the season. Being feminine, she was erratic in her gaits, and there were a few heavy losers about town who had believed she could be true. The reporters applied for information.

Mr. Morin? Certainly not. He was never been a spectator at the races. Not that kind of a man. Surprised the gentlemen should ask.

"Shall we throw it up?" suggested Robbins, "and let the puzzle department have a try?"

"Cherchez la femme," hummed Dumars, reaching for a match. "Try the Little Sisters of What-d'you-call-em."

It had developed, during the investigation, that Mr. Morin had held this benevolent order in particular favor. He had contributed liberally toward its support, and had chosen its chapel as his favorite place of private worship. It was said that he went there daily to make his devotions at the altar. Indeed, toward the last of his life his whole mind seemed to have fixed itself upon religious matters, perhaps to the detriment of his worldly affairs.

Thither went Robbins and Dumars, and were admitted through the narrow doorway in the blank stone wall that frowned upon Bonhomme street. An old woman was sweeping the chapel. She told them that Sister Felicite, the head of the order, was then at prayer at the altar in the alcove. In a few moments she would emerge. Heavy, black curtains screened the alcove. They waited.

Soon the curtains were disturbed, and Sister Felicite came forth. She was tall, tragic, bony and plain-featured, dressed in the black gown and severe bonnet of the sisterhood.

Robbins, a good rough-and-tumble reporter, but lacking the delicate touch, began to speak.

They represented the press. The lady had, no doubt, heard of the Morin affair. It was necessary, in justice to that gentleman's memory, to probe the mystery of the lost money. It was known that he had come often to this chapel. Any information, now, concerning Mr. Morin's habits, tastes, the friends he had, and so on, would be of value in doing him posthumous justice.

Sister Felicite had heard. Whatever she knew would be willingly told, but it was very little. Monsieur Morin had been a good friend to the order, sometimes contributing as much as a hundred dollars. The sisterhood was an independent one, depending entirely upon private contributions for the means to carry on its charitable work. Mr. Morin had presented the chapel with silver candlesticks and an altar cloth. He came every day to worship in the chapel, sometimes remaining for an hour. He was a devout Catholic, consecrated to holiness. Yes, and also in the alcove was a statue of the Virgin that he had, himself, modeled, cast, and presented to the order. Oh, it was cruel to cast a doubt upon so good a man!

Robbins was also profoundly grieved at the imputation. But, until it was found what Mr. Morin had done with Madame Tibault's money, he feared the tongue of slander would not be stilled. Sometimes—in fact, very often—in affairs of this kind there was—er—as the saying goes—er—a lady in the case. In absolute confidence, now—if—perhaps—

Sister Felicite's large eyes regarded him solemnly.

"There was one woman," she said, slowly, "to whom he bowed—to whom he gave his heart."

Robbins fumbled rapturously for his pencil.

"Behold the woman!" said Sister Felicite, suddenly, in deep tones.

She reached a long arm and swept aside the curtain of the alcove. In there was a shrine, lit to a glow of soft color by the light pouring through a stained glass window. Within a deep niche in the bare stone wall stood an image of the Virgin Mary, the color of pure gold.

Dumars, a conventional Catholic, succumbed to the dramatic in the act. He knelt for an instant upon the stone flags, and made the sign of the cross. The somewhat abashed Robbins, murmuring an indistinct apology, backed awkwardly away. Sister Felicite drew back the curtain, and the reporters departed.

On the narrow stone sidewalk of Bonhomme street, Robbins turned to Dumars, with unworthy sarcasm. "Well, what next? Churchy law fem?"

"Absinthe," said Dumars.

After the State had rested its case late yesterday afternoon, the defense took up its case and got started well on the way when court adjourned. Charles Gramer, a convict, from Jeffersonville, who was held in the Marion county jail at the time Noble was placed there for safe keeping and who was later convicted and sent to the reformatory for receiving stolen goods, was put on the stand. He testified that he met Noble in the Marion county jail.

He said that the sheriff of Decatur county came to the jail and said in his presence that he had come to take Noble back to Greensburg. Gramer also declared that he heard the sheriff tell Noble that he had better plead guilty and get off easy.

The State failed to bring out anything of importance or break down the testimony of the convict. He told the State's attorneys that he never talked to anyone about the case until yesterday at noon, when he held a conference with Noble's attorneys in the presence of the deputy sheriff.

The defense devoted the remainder of the few remaining minutes yesterday afternoon to character witnesses.

All of them, most of whom were Sprague's neighbors and had known Noble while he worked in that vicinity, did not have a word of reproach for Noble's character and said that he had always borne a good reputation.

George Davis, living near Sprague's home, testified that he had known Noble for eighteen months and that he had never known a stain on his character. He said that it was always considered to be the very best.

The State did little cross-examining. Harold Gilbreth of Decatur county also declared on the stand that Noble had a good reputation for peace and quietude. The State brought out nothing of importance in cross-examination.

Merritt Webb, whose farm adjoins the Sprague farm and who after testifying as a State's witness, was subpoenaed by the defense, bore out the testimony of the preceding character witnesses. The State did not attempt to break down his testimony.

John Gibson of Decatur county said that he had known Noble for a year and that he had never known anything bad of him until this charge was preferred against him. He said that during the time which he had borne the defendant's acquaintance, he had always thought his reputation above reproach.

Perry McClintick of Decatur county testified that he met Noble last spring and that he had always understood that his reputation was the very best.

John Hays of Decatur county declared on the stand that he had known Noble for ten months and that during that time he had never known him to do anything that was not all right. He only served to strengthen the testimony of the other character witnesses.

Mrs. Millie Michaels of the Sprague neighborhood, who was a witness for the State, was placed on the stand by the defense. She stated that Noble had always had a very good reputation. In the cross examination the State brought out that Noble went to work for Sprague in March of last year and that Mrs. Michaels had seen him only once in the time intervening between that and the day of the murder.

Before the State rested its case, Gus Logan, a Greensburg policeman testified and said that he first saw the defendant in the barnyard at the Sprague home. He told the jury that the Decatur county coroner stated in the presence of himself and Noble that from the appearance of the wound in Sprague's head the gun must have been about eighteen inches away when fired. The policeman declared that Noble sighed when the coroner made that statement.

Taylor Meek of Greensburg stated on the witness stand that he saw Noble for the first time on the morning after the night of the murder. He stated that he had examined the shotgun in the Sprague home on that morning and found that it had been fired only recently. He stated that Noble told him the gun had been cleaned by him on Saturday night before the Sunday on which the murder was committed. He asserted that he had handled a gun much during his life and knew whereof he spoke. He declared that the defendant appeared to him to be nervous that morning.

Neal Sprague of Bartholomew county, brother of the murdered man, who was at the Sprague home on the Monday morning after the murder, testified that he found an empty shell with the loaded ones where Albert Sprague kept them. The shell was produced and admitted as evidence. Mr. Sprague declared that the shell was damp inside and dry outside when he found it. The State failed to bring out anything in the cross examination.

Mrs. Millie Michaels of the Sprague neighborhood, said on the witness stand that she had known Noble before the day of the murder. She stated that he had told her that Sprague had promised him a rig free of charge besides his regular wages.

With the understanding that the gun, which is alleged to have been the weapon with which Sprague was killed, might be introduced as evidence today, the State rested its case with the jury. The Decatur county coroner testified yesterday, but failed to bring the gun as instructed.

COSTS BUT A TRIFLE TO CURE CATARRH

How many readers of the Daily Republican know that in Inland Australia where the mightiest of eucalyptus trees grow in abundance, that there is no consumption, catarrh or disease of the respiratory tract.

The refreshing balsam thrown out by these trees fills the air and is breathed into the lungs by the inhabitants and all germ life is destroyed.

Gray of the Johnson City public school, and committed suicide. He was found dead in a barn and is supposed to have used chloroform. He was under $5,000 bond.

The shooting of the teacher grew out of a dispute. The latter is said to have whipped the boy with a rubber hose.

SAGE FOR DARKENING THE HAIR.

There is nothing new about the idea of using sage for restoring the color of the hair. Our great-grandmothers kept their locks soft, dark and glossy by using a "sage tea." Whenever their hair fell out or took on a dull, faded or streaked appearance, they made a brew of sage leaves and applied it to their hair with wonderfully beneficial effect. Nowadays we don't have to resort to the old-time, tiresome method of gathering the herbs and making the brew. This is done by skillful chemists better than we could do it ourselves, and all we have to do is to call for the ready-made product. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, containing sage in the proper strength, with the addition of Sulphur, another old-time scalp remedy. This preparation is sold by all first-class druggists for 50c. and $1.00 a bottle, or sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price.

MADERO FORCES BLOODY BATTLE

Two Hundred Killed and Wounded
At Casas Grandes.

AMERICANS AMONG NUMBER

Of These Thirty-Six Were Captured
and at Least Four Slain—American Recruits of Madero's Insurrecto
Force Refuse to Run When Federals Gain the Best of the Battle, and Are Taken.

El Paso, Tex., March 10.—In his first clash with federals Francisco Madero was badly defeated and lost some of his best men, who were Americans.
The federals lost heavily, also. The battle was fought at old Casas Grandes, 225 miles south of here, and the insurrectos were routed in the battle but continued on the march toward Chihuahua. It is reported, but not yet confirmed, that the rebels soon rallied and returned, completely defeated the federals and captured the town of Casas Grandes. The fighting was between the command of Samuel G. Cuellar, aide de camp of the staff of President Diaz, and the insurrecto command of Madero.

Thirty-six of the Americans in Madero's command are known to have been captured, and among the dead
four Americans were seen in one pile.
They were in the front ranks of the insurrectos. The insurrectos lost 200 killed and wounded. They also lost 200 horses and twelve wagons loaded with provisions and ammunition.

Some field guns captured by Madero's advance guard when it entrapped Colonel Escudero's federal force on the Santa Maria river a week ago, were captured from the rebels, who did not have sufficient ammunition to operate them, while the federals had plenty of ammunition and a field gun, with which they shelled the rebels. The battle lasted about eleven hours. By a flank movement of federal cavalry the insurrecto prisoners were taken. Most of the prisoners were Americans who refused to run.

DISPOSING FORCES

General Duncan Laying Out the Camp
at Fort Sam Houston.

Fort Sam Houston, Tex., March 10.
—It is planned by General Duncan, commander of the department of Texas, to have the camp of the division well established before the arrival here of Major General W. H.

Carter, who will be in command of the mobilized forces.

The division will be divided into three infantry brigades, a cavalry brigade and an artillery brigade. The three infantry brigades will be commanded by Brigadier Generals R. W.
Hoyt, L. P. Mars and F. A. Smith. So far no provision has been made for the command of the cavalry and artillery brigades. It may be that they will be commanded by colonels. The ground for the camp comprises over 800 acres. The entire field will be utilized for camp purposes.

An Afterthought.
Washington, March 10.—The trivling importance attached by army officers to the maneuver phase of the mobilization was illustrated at the war department when inquiry was made as to who were to be umpires in the war game. Apparently the question of selecting umpires had been overlooked. The war department authorities seemed somewhat embarrassed and said that this question would be taken up immediately and that umpires would be named.

Mysterious Kentucky Tragedy.
Bowling Green, Ky., March 10.—
Eugene Neal, aged thirty years, superintendent of the farm of Sherman Whitlock at Massey's Mill, this county, was assassinated. Arising from the supper table, Mr. Neal walked to the front yard, and in a few moments a pistol shot rang out. Mr. Whitlock ran to the scene and found his superintendent dead, shot through the brain.

The Germans Are Agitated.
Berlin, March 10.—The Pan-German press is considerably agitated over the late developments in the Mexican situation. It accuses the government of the United States of taking advantage of the difficulties in Mexico to repeat "the practical exploits exemplified in the treatment of Texas."

New Danger Menaces.
Austin, Tex., March 10.—The state health department has been advised by its inspectors in Mexico that yellow fever has made its appearance in that country. A stringent quarantine will be established by the state against the infected places.

CHIHUAHUA'S CAPITAL IN IMMINENT DANGER

Rebels Closing In On Capital of Northern State.

Torreon, Mexico, March 10.—With the object of converging with a force of several hundred rebels that is advancing toward Chihuahua from Sa-huarich, Pascual Orozco's force of rebels, numbering about 500 men, has been making a detour to the west, Chihuahua advices say. This new movement is believed to be the part of the general plan of making a concerted attack upon Chihuahua within the next few days. The military authorities of that city are strengthening the fortifications in anticipation of the attack. It is thought that the railroad can be kept open between here and Chihuahua by the detachments of federal troops that have been stationed along the line when the repairs that are now being made to the destroyed bridges are finished.

The smelters of the American Smelting and Refining company at Chihuahua and Velardena are running short of ore and may have to be closed down. Many of the larger mines in the states of Chihuahua and Durango are closed on account of the tying up of transportation facilities.

A BROKER'S DEVICE

That Is What Ambassador Wilson
Characterizes Diaz Death Rumor.

New York, March 10.—"You can put it down for a practical certainty that the report of the death of President Diaz is false," said Henry L. Wilson, United States ambassador to Mexico,
when he was told of the rumor about the Mexican president. He said the report was intended to influence the stock market.

Mr. Wilson has left New York for Crawfordsville, Ind., where his mother is ill.

Italian Cruiser at Mazatlan.
Mazatlan, Mexico, March 10.—The Italian cruiser Etruria, commanded by Senor Fazalle, has arrived in this port and is attracting a great deal of attention in view of the present situation.

Factory Destroyed by Fire.
South Bend, Ind., March 10.—Fire of unknown origin destroyed the factory of the R. Z. Snell company, manufacturers of cement machinery, entailing a loss of $5,000.

WASHINGTON IS AT LAST FRANK

Admits Object of Unprecedented
Army "Maneuvers."

AN OBJECT LESSON TO MEXICO

Vell That Has Been Thrown About
Big Military and Naval Demonstration Is at Last Lifted and There Is No Longer Any Doubt as to Why All the Available Federal Troops Have Been Rushed South.

Washington, March 10.—There is no longer doubt as to why practically all the available federal troops now in the country have been rushed to Texas and lower California. The veil that has been thrown by officials high and low about the joint "maneuvers"
of the army and navy along the Mexican border and in the Gulf of Mexico has been put aside.

First of all the government feared the formation of an insurrection government in Lower California. With the formation of such a government the United States would be compelled to keep continual watch on the whole southern frontier.

Secondly it was feared that American property in Mexico, valued at hundreds of millions, might be swept away, and it was desired to protect as well the interests of foreigners who,
keeping in mind the Monroe doctrine, might look naturally to the United States for such protection.

Third, it was determined to stop friends of the Mexican insurrectos from carrying supplies that were contraband of war across the Rio Grande from Texas. Last of all it was believed that "maneuvers" in Texas at this time would show the "Jingoes" in congress and elsewhere that the army could be mobilized in case of difficulty in remarkably quick time.

No Backing Out Now.

The army is going to Texas and it is going to stay there until there is reason to believe that serious trouble in Mexico is no longer probable. It will patrol the border line with a fine-tooth comb and if necessary it will step in to prevent anarchy and revolution that would endanger lives and property of Americans and foreigners.
The step was taken advisedly and no retreat is contemplated.

Opinions differ in Washington as to the likelihood of developments on the Mexican frontier which may require intervention on the part of the United States. Obviously the government authorities believe that the situation is too serious to warrant the taking of any further chances. There is good reason to doubt that this government itself has an accurate conclusion of the conditions in Mexico. Henry Lane Wilson the ambassador to Mexico made a gloomy report of conditions when he was in Washington early in the week, but he was obliged to acknowledge that he himself could not tell the exact status of the rebellion.

Conflicting reports from credible sources are given out on the condition of President Diaz's health. The Mexican embassy declares upon the strength of official reports that the aged executive is in good physical and mental condition. On the other hand, statements from sources in Washington, sources which are accurate, say that President Diaz's health is fast declining and that his grip of affairs has slipped away with the advancing years. United States officials deny that they have received any alarming information as to his health, although there is good reason to believe that possible contingencies regarding his death were among the subjects discussed by Ambassador Wilson in his recent conferences with the Washington officials.

To Patrol Border Line.

The events of the last two days
make it absolutely certain now that no single development was responsible for the sudden decision on the part of the president and his advisers to hurry 20,000 troops to the Mexican frontier. The mobilization is the outcome of many circumstances, all of which led to the conclusion that it would be the part of wisdom to have a force in readiness on the Mexican frontier for use in emergency. The consideration of greatest importance was the protection of American and other foreign interests in Mexico. The United States has something like $1,500,000, 000 invested in Mexico and there are between 60,000 and 70,000 Americans living in that country.

The scout cruiser Chester has been ordered from Pensacola to Tampico, Mexico. The navy department gives no explanation of the sending of the war vessel to the eastern coast of Mexico, but this latest development fits in with the impressive military demonstration that is being made for the protection of American and other foreign properties in Mexico.

Workmen Caught in Crash.

New York, March 10.—Four men who were laying concrete flooring in an apartment house in course of construction were killed when a panel of concrete on the eighth floor of the building collapsed and carried down the panel underneath it on each of the other floors. The four men were buried underneath the mass of concrete,
steel and timber.
